

Baseball is our national pastime, so why should the fun stop when the season does? When the weather gets too rough to play outside, head to your favorite theatre to enjoy an evening of short comedies and dramas all about the game. In Extra Innings, ten playwrights celebrate what baseball means to them and their characters. From a comedy about a marriage proposal hinging on the fate of the final score; or a drama about bittersweet memories of listening to games on the radio; or even a hilarious and poignant introduction to Little League — these plays— and more —will tug at your heartstrings, and make you laugh out loud. But above all, they'll remind you that nothing—nothing—gets in the way of the game and your favorite team! Play ball!
